19 November 2008

WA aged care organisation Amana Living has been awarded a prestigious national Employer of Choice award by the Aged Care Association Australia (ACAA) at its annual conference in Hobart.

The award showcases the achievements of an aged care organisation which the Association deems to be dedicated to innovation, creativity, employee training and development, and also to creating a high level of staff morale and team spirit.

CEO Ray Glickman says Amana Living is thrilled to receive such a prestigious national award.

"Winning this award is a fantastic result for Amana Living," he said.

"We have worked very hard to develop a participative culture here so that the contribution of every staff member is recognized and valued and we have introduced numerous initiatives developed by our own staff to make us an employer of choice

"We will strive on to ensure that working at Amana Living can fit with other demands on people's lives and that the work is highly rewarding and also, very importantly, fun

"We place a lot of faith in our staff in the valuable work they do and we find we are getting great results from them every day."

Amana Living operates 17 retirement villages, 10 hostels, five nursing homes and three day clubs throughout Western Australia. It provides specialised care for dementia residents and their families, as well as a wide range of community services to people living in their own homes.
